“ The phone call came, a sudden, jarring sound,
And silence fell where laughter once was found.
Phyllis, my daughter, vibrant, full of grace,
Now gone, leaving an empty, aching space.

*I see her face, a smile that warmed my soul,
The stories shared, the moments that made us whole.
From tiny hands that reached for mine to hold,
To womanhood, a beauty to behold.*

*Each memory a treasure I will keep,
A love so deep, it makes my spirit weep.
The world feels dimmer, colors start to fade,
Without the light her presence always made.*

*I search for solace in the days gone by,
And whisper prayers beneath a starlit sky.
Though grief may linger, heavy on my chest,
Her love remains, a bond forever blessed.*

*So rest in peace, my darling, precious child,
Your memory etched forever in my soul
And broken heart, until we meet again,
Beyond the reach of sorrow and of pain.*

*The wind carried your laughter to places unknown,
And your dad felt the loss with a moan.
Three sons' hearts still beat with your grace,
Three men still carry your love.
In their smiles, in their dreams, in their hearts,
You remain as constant as the sky above.*

Love.

Dad
